(7-8 social hour 8-9 dinner) and at 9:00 the dance will begin lasting til 12 midnight. Reservations for this event must be made in advance and the price is $4.75 per person.

On Saturday, the events start off with registration at 11:00 AM on the lawn in front of Phoebe Hearst Hall. The Booster Club will have their annual luncheon at 12 noon and following, the induction of the Hall of Fame members and then the meeting. The baseball game with Valdosta State begins at 2:00 PM at Anderson Field.

At 3:30 PM there will be an Art Tea in the Art gallery. The exhibit this year will be contributed by Mr. H. M. "Monk" Clement. Mr. Clement has had an exhibition in St. Louis and more recently in Des Peres, Missouri.

The Annual Alumni Association meeting is at 5:00 PM in the Auditorium followed by the traditional buffet supper on the lawn.

This year The Players will present a play, "The Lesson and the Bald Soprano" by Eugene Ionesco.

This riotious play is a take-off on the banality of English surburbia and has delighted audiences in Paris for years. This production by the Players will be one of the first that has been done in the United States.

With the expansion of Alumni Day to include another day we hope to entice some of you out of town alumni to come back to your old Alma Mater for a really memorable visit.

Mr. James S. Peters Receives Bell Award

Mr. James S. Peters, Chairman of the State Board of Education was this year's recipient of the School Bell Award presented by the Oglethorpe Alumni Association to a person who has made outstanding contributions to the field of education.

Mr. Peters, a native of Manchester, Georgia, is a gentleman in his 80's and states firmly that he has been connected with the educational system of Georgia for 73 years—from the time when the school year was only three months long until the present time working with his fourth governor as chairman of the State Board of Education.

Mr. Holliday, President of the Alumni Association states that we are honored to present the Bell Award to such a distinguished educator as Mr. Peters.

Progress Report - Fund Drive

Like any private college, Oglethorpe University needs our help—our help in dollars. The trustees are working hard to build endowment so that the annual income will be larger. One way we can help is to show the potential sources that our own "family" is behind the college. This means that your contribution to the 1964 Forward Oglethorpe Fund—regardless of size automatically increases the percentage of participation.

As of April 10th, our alumni had contributed $17,000. We would like to be at our goal of $30,000 by Alumni Day, May 15th & 16th.

This is to remind you not to delay too long in sending your check to the Forward Oglethorpe Fund. There is more to this business than showing an appreciation of what Oglethorpe did for us. We are more than maintaining the high standard set by our country's educational system and there is no need for one to point to us the importance of our private colleges in the picture. Send in whatever you can afford and it will be sincerely appreciated.

Merriman Smith to be Commencement Speaker

Merriman Smith

Merriman Smith, class of '36, will be the speaker at the 90th commencement of Oglethorpe University which will be held on Sunday, June 7th at 5:00 P.M.

For more than 20 years, Mr. Smith has covered major news events for United Press International. He has been assigned to the White House since 1941 and is now the senior White House Correspondent.

His travels with Presidents have taken him all over the world. He accompanied Roosevelt on wartime trips in and out of the United States; and was at Warm Springs at the time of Roosevelt's death. Mr. Smith received the National Headliners Award for coverage of that story in 1945. He was with Truman at the Potsdam Conference. During the Eisenhower terms, he traveled to Korea in 1952 as well as Eisenhower's tour of 11 Asian, African and European nations. Mr. Smith covered the Bermuda Big Three Conference and the Paris NATO Council meeting.

With the late President Kennedy, he made all trips abroad including the meeting in Vienna between Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev, the visits to Columbia and Venezuela; Mexico City and in April of 1963 the conference with the presidents of six Central American nations in Costa Rico.

Headlines all over the world attested to his greatest effort when he wrote of the assassination of President Kennedy in Dallas. His eyewitness account of the tragic event is written in Four Days, a book published by UPI about the death and funeral of Kennedy.

Mr. Smith has written five books on his Presidential experiences and observations. "Thank You Mr. President", "A President is Many Men", "Meet Mr. Eisenhower", "A President's Odyssey" and "The Good News Days".

He is frequently on national television panel productions including such shows as Meet the Press and Face the Nation.

In addition to his day-to-day coverage of the President, Mr. Smith writes a regular three-times-a-week column for UPI titled "Backstairs at the White House." This is a collection of the less publicized sidelight events of the occupants.

He is a member of White House Correspondents Association, Phi Kappa Phi, and the National Press Club in Washington.

Before joining UPI, Mr. Smith served as managing editor of the Athens, Georgia Daily Times. In 1936 he joined the staff of UPI and covered the Georgia and Florida legislatures before his transfer to the Washington bureau.

Outside the Peace Corps. Looking In

The following "article" is really a letter from Miss Judy Skiles, a 1963 graduate of Oglethorpe. Miss Skiles is engaged to a member of the Peace Corps, Arnold Baker, also a 1963 graduate now stationed in Guatemala. With her permission, the letter is as follows:

April 3, 1964

Dear Joyce

I hope you will not mind the manner in which this letter is written. I have resorted to duplicating a letter because I have so much to tell so many. This way I will be able to send everyone a long letter about my trip to visit Arnold in Guatemala.

After months of anticipation and preparation for the trip it was hard to realize on December 20 that the time had finally come for me to go. Somehow, though, I managed to pack and float out to the airport. My suitcases, by the way, were full primarily of miscellaneous articles for Arnold: Christmas presents from his family and mine; articles of food and clothing for him which he is unable to get at a reasonable price in Guatemala; and most important of all, peanut butter. Yes, that's right, peanut butter! This "delicacy" as well as other American food products cost three to four times as much there as they do here at home. I'll bet I was the only person going through customs with peanut butter in her suitcase!

I flew from St. Louis to New Orleans via Delta—my first jet ride. It was quite exciting, though a little rough. From New Orleans I flew directly to Guatemala City via Taca Airlines, a Central American line which provided very smooth and friendly service.

After leaving St. Louis with six inches of snow on the ground, I was overjoyed to be greeted by the warm Guatemalan sunshine and temperature in the upper 70's. Most of all, though, it was wonderful being greeted by that handsome, smiling (and sun-burned) Peace Corps Volunteer who was waving to me from a balcony overlooking the airfield. Somehow I muddled through customs, not understanding a word of the Spanish directed to me by the officials. I just smiled, shrugged my shoulders, and thrust my passport into their hands.

I was in Guatemala for ten exciting days. And in that time Arnold was able to show me quite a lot of the country and of the Indian way of life. I hardly know where to start in telling you of my impressions, but I suppose I'll begin with Guatemala City, the capital and only large city of the country. It is a bustling metropolis with most, if not all, of the advantages of a large city in the U.S. One of the unusual aspects of the city, however, is that on every side there are seemingly contradictory extremes. The number of expensive American and foreign cars was surprising to me. At the same time, so were the many wooden carts loaded with products, which were pulled by the Indian men themselves. In the same city block, one could see women dressed in the latest and most fashionable styles, as well as Indian women dressed in their traditional long and multi-colored costumes.

This situation, political scientists tell us, is the tragedy of most of Central and South America. There is no middle class to speak of. The people can be divided into two classes: the wealthy and the destitute. Not only is this class division evident in the city. The same classification also exists out in the country, where the wealthy people are finca (ranch) owners. These ranchers own great tracts of land, which are worked by Indian laborers for only fifty cents a day. A whole village of Indians often will be employed by one rich finca owner, in almost feudalistic system. One of the main objectives of the Peace Corps in Guatemala, Arnold tells me, is to help raise the economic situation of these Indians who live in the outlying villages.

Arnold works in a small village, Patzicia, in the state of Chimaltenango, which is located on the Pan-American Highway only two hours' drive west from Guatemala City. He is living there with Pat and Cliff Gruver, a young married couple who are also in Peace Corps service. Their work in Patzicia has many facets. Since their group of volunteers is sponsored by the National Grange, much of their work is agricultural. In addition to this, they have built and partially stocked a library — Patzicia's first. Arnold is teaching five English classes a week. Pat is teaching nutrition and sewing to the village women. And soon Cliff will be starting carpentry classes. Arnold is also directing several youth activities: soccer, soft-ball, girls' basketball, and the equivalent of a 4-H Club for the village youngsters.

I was relieved to find that Arnold's home in Patzicia is fairly comfortable. He and the Gruvers are renting a four room house which is about a foot from the Pan-American Highway. (All of the houses are built right on the street.) There are two large patios behind the house, both of which are enclosed by an adobe wall. In the back patio is a small vegetable garden, and a place to keep livestock. In the patio nearest the house is a water faucet (quite a luxury), an out-door sink for washing clothes and (under construction) a kitchen with a wood burning stove!

I was very impressed by the friendliness of the villagers in Patzicia. So many of them came to see me to express their pleasure at meeting "la novia de Arnaldo." Although I could say only "mucho gusto" and smile, I hope they realized how much I enjoyed seeing them. All of them seemed so very eager to learn about the United States. And they could say a few words in English, most commonly "thank you", "hello", and "Pepsi Cola".

Arnold and I were lucky to be able to spend Christmas Eve and Christmas day in one of the most beautiful resorts in Guatemala, Lake Atitlan. This is one of the highest and largest natural lakes in the world. It is ringed on all sides by mountains and volcanoes, one of which is still active. It was so beautiful on a clear day to see the white smoke gently rising from the mountain peak.

The weather is warmer at the lake than in the city, so we were able to go swimming both days. The warmer climate also enables trees and flowers of many varieties to bloom all year 'round. I was so excited at seeing oranges, pineapples and bananas growing. Carnations and poinsettias were blooming all over the countryside. You can imagine how brilliantly-colored the landscape was.

After leaving the lake we took a side trip to Chichicastenango, an Indian village which is way back up in the mountains. We bumped and jogged along a dirt road until I thought my insides were tangled beyond repair. Finally we reached the village and looked up another Peace Corps Volunteer who works there. Dick Hedge is a St. Louis boy who is working in association with a hospital clinic for the Indians in this village. While in Chichi we saw some fascinating Indian ceremonial dances. I hope all my slides turn out well.

The excursion which was perhaps the most exciting to me was the bus trip Arnold and I took to the Pacific coast of Guatemala. We traveled on an Indian bus nearly 150 miles for only $1.00 each. These buses, which are school buses bought from the U.S. and Germany, are the life-line of the Indian economy. The Indians travel to market on the buses, carrying their products, which may be large heads of cabbage, corn, sugar cane, chickens, turkeys, and even hogs. The inanimate bundles are tied on the top of the bus. Sometimes the frisky hogs are tied on top also, squealing for all they are worth! The chickens and turkeys come inside—with the passengers.

Our destination was the port of San Jose, Guatemala's largest Pacific port. There, as elsewhere, the scenery was beautiful. The sand on the beach was black, something unusual to me. Arnold said that it is because of the volcanic soil.

I met so many nice people while I was in Guatemala: other Peace Corps Volunteers, some American Friends working in the country, Arnold's bosses and several of his Guatemalan friends.

I'm sure I have not covered everything in this long epistle. If you have any specific question about matters that I did not touch, please write me, or better yet, write Arnold. He could answer your questions much better. After all, I'm only a ten day "authority" on Guatemala.

And so for now, hasta la vista and vaya con Dios.

Judy

Alumni Participation Scores Grant

Alumni participation in the Forward Oglethorpe Fund has "paid off". The Gulf Oil Corporation awarded Oglethorpe a grant in the amount of $437.00 for unrestricted use.

This grant was one of some 692 awards totaling $500,000 that Gulf will distribute this year as direct, unrestricted grants to as many Universities and Colleges under its Aid to Education Program.

This grant to Oglethorpe was calculated on the basis of a formula which takes into account the quality of the school's curriculum, the effectiveness of its program and the amount of financial support provided by the alumni.

Institutions eligible for direct grants are those which are privately operated and controlled and which obtain a major portion of their financial support from non-tax sources.

The check was presented to Dr. George Seward, acting president of Oglethorpe by Mr. J. H. Griffith, Area Sales Manager of Gulf Oil.

Appointments, Awards and Grants

Miss Donna Lee Williams, a senior at Oglethorpe University, has been awarded a grant and teaching assistantship in India under the provisions of the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 (Fullbright-Hays Act).

All candidates are selected by the Board of Foreign Scholarships, the members of which are appointed by the President. American student candidates are recommended by campus Fulbright-Hays Scholarships and by the Institute of International Education.

Miss Williams, a science major, resides at 190 Laurel Forest Circle, NE, Atlanta 5, Georgia.

Mr. Ed Danus, a director of the Pocket Theater and publicity and advertising director of the Municipal Theater, will be the director of The Players, the drama group at Oglethorpe University.

Mr. Danus has acted and directed in numerous productions both off-Broadway and summer stock. He is most known for his performance in "Waltz of the Toreado", an off-Broadway show which ran nine months.

A graduate of the University of the Philippines, he has done post graduate study at Mexico City College.

Mr. Danus is from LaGrange, Georgia but now is residing in Atlanta.

Mr. Grady Randolph, guest teacher at Oglethorpe University, was elected president of the Atlanta Chapter, American Association for the United Nations. Mr. Randolph is a former vice president of that organization.

Dr. Donald C. Agnew, former president of Oglethorpe was re-elected Chairman of the Board.

Dr. Joseph M. Branham of the Biology department of Oglethorpe University has been awarded a grant of $1,300 for study in cell aging at Wood's Hole, Mass. this coming summer.

The grant was given by the Lalor Foundation, a foundation for advanced research applying biochemistry and biophysics to the study of fundamental phenomena in the field of fertility and reproduction in various forms of life.

Luke Appling is Elected to Baseball's Hall of Fame in Coopertown

Luke Appling, '32, has become 101st baseball player to be elected to the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, New York. The elections took place this past Winter.

Lucian "Bird" Hope, '21 coached Appling in high school days at Fulton High School. Following his graduation there, Appling played 2 seasons at Oglethorpe under Frank Anderson and then went on to the major leagues where he played 2,442 games with 2,218 of them as shortstop.

In 1958, Appling ended his career in the major leagues and began as manager for Memphis in the Southern Association. Last season, he was a coach with Baltimore and this coming season, he will be with the Athletics at Bradenton as batting coach.

HALL OF FAME TO INDUCT THREE NEW MEMBERS

Oglethorpe University's most distinguished service award in athletics, membership into the athletic HALL OF FAME, is expected to be bestowed on three individuals during homecoming exercises Saturday, May 16th.

Established three years ago, to recognize outstanding contributions to the Oglethorpe University athletic program, the award has achieved a coveted status among its recipients, it was created by the Oglethorpe Booster Club to recognize not only those who have actually participated in the sports program, but those who have given unselfishly of their time and ability to forward the progress of the program.

The 1964 inductees will be installed following a noon luncheon and Booster Club meeting on the 16th. Co-chairman for the project are Ed Miles and Ansel Paulk.

Former inductees into the hall of fame include Luke Appling, who this year was named to baseball's hall of fame, Harry Robertson, Garland Pinholster, Frank Anderson Sr., Sy Bell, Adrian Maurer, Steve Schmidt, L. N. Turk, and Clay Parish.

Although the names and number of the 1964 inductees have not been made public, it was safely assumed there would be no more than three new members.

SPORTS

The same common ailment effected tennis and baseball on the O.U. campus this spring—inexperience. But a slow start in both sports is suddenly rounding into promising signs.

In baseball, Coach Billy Carter's boys have recorded (at publication time) a record of 2-5, but the two victories are consecutive after five defeats.

The Petrel baseballers were hurt early by the ineligibility of five boys who figured prominently in spring plans. However, the sudden development of several freshmen and the steady contributions of the few returning lettermen have enhanced chances for a .500 or better season.

Oglethorpe's two victories have been over Erskine (3-2) and Berry (3-2). In the Berry victory, pitcher-outfielder Larry Abner hurled a seven-hit gem and struck out 13 men, including Berry's cleanup batter five times.

Abner, Bob Moreland, Roy Cowart, Ben Hargrove and Bobby Sexton are the proven performers. Freshmen Larry Shattles at shortstop, Charlie Stepp at third and Jimmy Copeland at first, have all exhibited calm under fire. The catching, which has been a concern on the O.U. campus since the departure of Tommy Norwood two years ago, is handled by capable Robert Tillery.

"We've been fairly pleased with the progress," said Coach Carter. "Cold and wet weather hampered us early, and the loss of those boys before the season started, but the team is getting accustomed to switching around and I feel we could make, or better, .500 for the season.

"The pitching is pleasing. Abner's game was encouraging and we have good men in Cowart, Moreland, Hargrove and Sexton, plus Jabo Johnson. Then, too, we've cut down on errors. They really hurt at first but we only made one in the last two games."

The tennis team, coached this year by athletic director Garland Pinholster, has gone through some of the same problems as the baseball team, and, like baseball, has solved most of them.

At publication date, the Petrels had accomplished a 4-3 record, which speaks well of a team depleted by graduation.

"We lost three of the first six men from last year," Coach Pinholster said. "We've filled in with intramural boys and they've responded wonderfully."

The three returnees are Bill Pate, Ray Thomas and Dan Cowart. The three intramural graduates are Bob McMains, Hoyt Wagoner and Hank Alexander. Also Clark Raby has made fine progress.

Pate, the No. 1 singles man, has lost only one match while winning six. Thomas is No. 2 in singles; Cowart, No. 3; Raby, No. 4; McMains, No. 5, and Alexander, No. 6. Wagoner would be listed, except for illness.

No. 1 doubles team is Pate and Thomas, followed, in order, by Raby-Cowart and McMain-Alexander.

"A lot of people put emphasis on the No. 1 and 2 man in tennis," said Coach Pinholster, "but that sixth man is just as important. His point counts just as much, and we've been getting fine play out of those boys, especially Alexander. He's a fine competitor.

"Thomas, who was hurt in basketball, is not quite up to snuff yet, but he is gradually coming around. This is good for him, helps strengthen his leg."

The Petrel tennis team has defeated Cumberland, Shorter, West Georgia and Berry. There are seven more matches to go and Coach Pinholster is confident his boys will do well.

"We really want to be right for Homecoming day," Pinholster emphasized. "The tennis team plays Georgia State in the morning and the baseball team takes on Valdosta State in the afternoon. It will be a big day for our spring sports program."
